

Your Amazing 2014 Vision Board.

A vision board is to provide focus and motivation for the year ahead. It is based on the things you wish to receive and experience during the year. There are many different ways to create a vision board but I have found this way simple and effective.

I created my first vision board back in 2010 and I dreamt BIG and to my surprise at the end of the year I was able to tick off each of the pictures as I received them.

So here we go:

1. Get an A3 sheet of paper with different colored pens and anything else that inspires you

2. Then collect pictures of the things you are wishing to receive or experience and start sticking them onto the piece of paper

3. Add words in between the pictures that describe the person you will have become because of receiving these things

4. Stick the vision board on a wall/ place that you will notice daily. While your brushing your teeth or having your first cup of tea in the morning look over the board, and recognize the things you have already done that are changing the pictures into reality.

This isn't supposed to be a job list, or something that you create and ends up in a draw. It's there to inspire you each morning for a day full of experiences that will help you to be one day closer to receiving all those things.

Happy Creating!
